SUMMARY

A military barracks area is located on the northern outskirts of Mozdok, 500 meters south of the Prokhladnyy-Gudermes rail line. It is situated on a highway leading to the Mozdok Airfield, 3 kilometers (km) north, and to the Mozdok Ammunition Depot, 7 km west (Figure 1).

The installation covers 130 acres and contains 31 barracks/administration buildings, 2 vehicle storage sheds, and 29 general utility/storage buildings (Figures 2 and 3).

This area was covered on [ ] photography of [ ] and on interpretable photography from [ ] missions between [ ]. Comparison of this photography reveals only minor changes. The tents discernible in 1957 have been replaced by 2 small buildings. Between [ ] 3 multistory barracks and the vehicle maintenance/storage buildings were added in the southern corner of the installation.

This installation appears to be used for billeting only. Excellent photography of [ ] reveals no equipment of military significance in the area; no training facilities were apparent on any of the photography. This installation probably provides additional housing for troops stationed at either the Mozdok Airfield or the Mozdok Ammunition Depot.

DESCRIPTION OF INSTALLATION

Railroad Service

Railroad yards for the Prokhladnyy-Gudermes rail line are approximately 500 meters north.

Road Service

A tall masonry tower, probably for water, and a circular probable POL tank are also in this area.

Area D3 contains five 2-story barracks.

General Storage Area

Area E is fenced and contains 9 general utility/storage buildings.

Other Buildings and Facilities

Area H contains a large multistory building with unidentified equipment on the roof and a small utility building. The area is secured by a fence.

ground scars and vehicle tracks. A secondary road serving Mozdok traverses the area. A large excavation shows no signs of recent activity. There is some evidence of cultivation in the southwest section. There are no indications of recent military activity.
